

white surplice, the pontifical ushers bearing mitered wands covered with velvet, the penitentiaries of the basilica, carrying wooden rods wreathed with flowers, mitered abbots, surplice priests, and uniformed soldiers.

Then came a line of Swiss guards with broad scimitar swords, the archbishops, bishops and patriarchs. Behind them again came the serried phalanx of almost sixty cardinals in scarlet robes, white haberd and venerable looking, each wearing the special dress of his order—cardinals in chasubles, cardinal deacons in dalmatics.

The last cardinals hardly had sat down on the stools at the side of the altar when the two hundred and fifty-first supreme pontiff of the holy Roman Catholic church, sitting on the "seda gestatoria" (chair of command) entered the chapel of the sacrament.

The "seda gestatoria," the golden throne upon a red velvet litter, was supported on the shoulders of twelve "sedari" (pope's carriers) in red robe, wearing quaint red caps. The pope was in a white cape embroidered with gold, fastened in front by a precious diamond. On his head was the resplendent golden mitre. On his right hand blazed the green Fisherman's ring. Over his head floated "Balduccino," a red, richly embroidered canopy supported by six long poles, carried by secret chamberlains in picturesquely red robes and ermine cloaks. At the sides two secret chamberlains carried the "fabelli," semi-circular ostrich feather fans fixed at the ends of velvet covered poles, lending a touch of eastern splendor to the scene.

Princes Attend Pontif.

Grouped around the pontiff were Prince Colonna and Prince Orsini, assistants to the pontifical throne, officers of the noble guard, secret chamberlains, high officials of the pontifical nobles, Knights of the Cape and Sword, and pontifical dignitaries, all wearing the full dress uniforms worn only on gala occasions.

The pope stopped in the chapel of the Sacrament on the raised dais where the archpriest of the Basilica, Cardinal Merry del Val, was waiting with the complete chapter of the church. Merry del Val advanced, sinking to his knees, kissed the pontiff's foot and presented to him a firm voice the greetings of the chapter of St. Peter's, together with the wish that his pontifical neighbor, the happy, long, and glorious one—the pope, this time, answered, thanking him.

The procession, more than 600 strong, then slowly moved down the main aisle of the biggest church in the world.

A Page of Medieval Glory.

The scene looking down the main aisle was superb, marvelous, and fantastic, a living page out of the book of medieval glory, a symphony of color.

The vast basilica, blazing with a thousand candles whose light was reflected from the polished floors and columns, looked like an immense casket full of precious jewels, such was the profusion of brilliant colors.

On the way to the high altar the master of ceremonies kneeled before the pope, lighting little tapers of hemp at the feet of the silver staff, singing as they were slowly consumed: "Holy father, thus does the glory of the world pass."

Mass of Mystic Symbols.

Having arrived at the high altar in the Chapel of St. Gregory, the pontiff celebrated a special mass full of mystic symbols meaning. Cardinal Lega removed the miter and presented the pope with a little white woolen scarf known as the pallium, symbol of the fulness of the pontifical power.

After Cardinal Merry del Val had kissed him on the cheek and breast, the pope sat on the throne and there received the last "adoration." The cardinals kissed the foot of the pontiff, who embraced them each twice. The patriarchs, archbishops, and bishops kissed the foot and right knee; the mitered abbots kissed the foot only.

After completion of this picturesque rite, the pope walked to the steps of St. Peter for the culmination of the fantastically impressive ceremony.

"Father of Princes and Kings."

Cardinal Lega, after removing the pope's miter, solemnly placed the triple crown upon his head, saying in a loud voice, which in the hushed silence, reached the uttermost corners of the vast basilica:

"Receive the tiara, adorned with three crowns, and know that thou art father of princes and kings, rector of the universe, vicar of our Savior, Jesus Christ, who possesses the honor and glory from century to century. Amen."

IT'S EASY TO BUY GUNS ANYWHERE, PAYING POSTMAN

JUST "PAY THE POSTMAN"

Reporter Has No Trouble Getting a "Gat."

It's easy for a Chicago crook to get a gun. How? Just "pay the postman."

Some days ago The Tribune portrayed the ease with which a Chicago crook could go to a local dealer and purchase a gun, having it sent to Evanson by mail.

A few days ago a TRIBUNE reporter was instructed to purchase a gun in some downstate town and have it sent by mail to his home in Chicago.

"Just Call a Friend."

"Sure—what kind of a gun do you want?" the friend replied.

"That's easy," said the friend. "I'll give you a — automatic pistol."

"Can you have the dealer send it to me parcel post so I can pay the postman for it—have it sent to my Chicago house?" was the next query.

The postman collected $20.84 for a pistol with a looking glass. For a pistol with a $1.50. The reporter purchased after he had noise steel jacketed bullets at Von Lengerke & Antoin's shop on South Wabash avenue. For a nickel he bought a black handkerchief at a department store.

And Then Kill 'Em.

Thus equipped—that reporter could then have killed a policeman or committed a holdup on an equality with any other thug—all for an expenditure of less than $25.

The dealer's name in Bloomington is R. E. Hurst. On the bright yellow tag accompanying the gun, his address is given as 100 W. Main street.

Supposing a criminal had purchased the gun, and had later committed murder with it, even if the gun were traced the police would be unlikely to trace its ownership.

"Just pay to postman—no questions asked!" It seems to be the motto of the gun dealers.

BISCHOFF TELL'S HOW $260 GREW INTO MILLIONS

Local Ponzi Blames Fall on Oil Deals.

Raymond J. Bischoff, known to thousands of back of the yards residents as the financial wizard of Bubbly Creek, yesterday told a TRIBUNE reporter how a lucky deal for $260 had finally involved him in financial transactions which he admits have cost those who trusted him $4,500,000.

"A friend of mine begged me to play the market with his money, telling his creditors were pushing him," Bischoff said. "I finally consented, doubling his money in a week. He told all his friends, and I was immediately besieged with similar requests. That was the beginning of it."

Assets Near Half Million?

Activities of Bischoff came to a crisis Saturday with the filing of involuntary petitions in bankruptcy by three of his "clients." According to Felix J. Streymans, attorney for the creditors, probably not more than half a million dollars can be gleaned from his entangled assets.

After completing their search through a mass of documents taken from the Bischoff offices at 2213 Marshall boulevard, attorneys for the relatives issued subpoenas last night for Mr. Frank O. Davis, Bischoff's mother; Mr. Davis, his blind stepfather; E. G. Geer, a brother-in-law; and Charles W. Bischoff, his brother. They were ordered to appear this morning before Judge Landis to tell what they knew of the "wizard's" dealings. All live with Bischoff at his home, 5499 Hyde Park boulevard.

No summons was issued for Mrs. E. G. Geer, sister of Bischoff. She is believed to be on the Pacific coast, but no particular significance is attached to her departure from the city.

James J. Kelly, attorney for Bischoff, asserts, however, that his client will not spend a day in prison on account of his operations.

"Bischoff has violated no law—he has simply lost money in speculations," said Mr. Kelly. "A man can't be imprisoned for nonpayment of promissory notes if he hasn't the money. I believe creditors will get about 10 cents on the dollar."

In Federal Custody.

Bischoff was taken into custody Friday on a no-exact warrant and is under surveillance of Deputy Marshal Thomas Smith pending examination before Judge Landis, possibly on Tuesday.

"While I welcome government intervention into my affairs, I could have pulled through if they'd let me alone another week," declared Bischoff. He denied he remained in custody with no effort to meet his $25,000 bonds because of fear of physical violence at the hands of enraged creditors.

"I want to do all I can to clear this mess up, and I admit I'm $4,500,000 in debt and with assets possibly not worth over $2,000,000," he said.

"I used poor judgment in accepting money simply on my promissory notes. I should have earned a company. That's what I planned to do next week when the crash came. The situation during the past week has been a terrific strain on my nerves. I was near a mental collapse when arrested."

Bischoff insists he is "in the clear." He did not in a single case promise huge rates of interest to any client, he says, but, on the contrary, warned his "customers" they might lose all. An attempt to gain control of the Oil and Gas company proved his undoing, he said. This company, according to Bischoff, has extensive holdings in Oklahoma, 160 miles north of Tulsa, as well as in the Texas oil fields. Its stock has a par of a dollar a share, but the present market quotation, he said, had dropped to 22 cents.

NEW RELIGIOUS WAR IN BELFAST FLARES UP; 4 DIE

Woman and Boy Killed by Sniper's Bullets.

BY A. W. STEWART.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright, 1922, by The Chicago Tribune.]

BELFAST, Feb. 12.—While the embers of civil war smoldered along the border between Ulster and the Irish Free State, religious antagonists in Belfast renewed fighting this evening. Margaret Page, a married woman, and David Boyd, 19 years old, were slain by snipers. Two men were killed in the Milledist district.

At Ulster, it is believed that the murderous attack by Irish republican army men on a party of Ulster constables at Clones yesterday. Four of the special policemen were killed, eleven wounded, and five taken prisoner.

Matthew Fitzpatrick, who was in command of the Sinn Feiners, was shot dead. One civilian was also wounded in the fray, which, according to various versions, was opened suddenly by a rain of machine gun bullets, under cover of which nearly 100 Sinn Feiners rushed upon the Ulsterites, taking them by surprise.

British Fear New Clash.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Following the receipt of a vigorous protest from Premier Eamon de Valera, Winston Churchill immediately summoned the cabinet committee on Irish affairs this afternoon. The British government is seriously concerned over the attack on Ulstermen by Irish radicals at Clones. It is feared that it will lead to further fighting and perhaps very serious difficulties in passing the Irish legislation in parliament.

Additional contingents of British troops will be rushed to the Ulster border, it was stated tonight.

The Irish provisional government, word from Dublin says, is also taking strong measures to suppress the border raiders.

De Valera Opens Fight.

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Eamon de Valera opened the campaign against the provisional government with a great demonstration in O'Connell street today.

Three large plazas had been cleared for the speakers, and each was surrounded by large crowds. Members of the republican and metropolitan police regulated the gathering. All traffic in O'Connell street was suspended for an hour by order of the republican chief of police.

About 1,000 republican soldiers paraded prior to the meeting.

Mr. de Valera was accorded a great reception. He spoke from the principal platform at the Parnell statue. Count Plunkett, who presided, introduced Mr. de Valera as "proud of the republicanism to which there were replies of 'No, no.' The king would be embodied in the Irish constitution and be really the authority of Premier Lloyd George and his cabinet.

The foreign monarch's forces

Cork Strike Vote in Doubt.

CORK, Feb. 12.—The striking railroad men voted to end the strike.

The majority was a narrow one and a recount was demanded. It will be made tomorrow. All the railway stations closed last week have been evacuated by the strikers, but none has returned to work.

Resolutions Attack Treaty.

The resolutions affirmed that the Irish state authority is one and indivisible; that all state authority in Ireland is derived solely from the Irish people; that the British crown is an alien crown, and that Ireland is no part of the British empire.

The resolutions further declared the articles of the London agreement failed to represent the true desires of the Irish people; that the treaty was obtained under duress, and that the Dail Eireann is not competent to give it legal sanction, and therefore it is null

RAID ON WIND BLEW INN NETS UNIVERSITY MEN

Four students were among the forty persons arrested last Saturday night in the dry raid by East Chicago avenue police on the Wind Blew Inn at 116 East Ohio street.

The four are Theodore Strehlow, 727 North Michigan avenue, Evanston, sophomore at Northwestern university and member of Delta Upsilon fraternity; Ronald Dugan, 1224 Oak avenue, Evanston, also a sophomore at Northwestern university and a member of Delta Upsilon; Philip Dugan, 1224 Oak avenue, Evanston, Northwestern sophomore, and Montgomery Major, 19, 215 9th avenue, Wilmette, New Trier High school graduate.

Strehlow is prominent in dramatic circles at the university, having taken the leading feminine rôle in last year's annual play of the Hermit and Crow, Northwestern Dramatic club.

All persons arrested had been released on bonds, according to the police last night.

Miss Lillian Collier, arrested as keeper of a disorderly house, and Virginia Harrison, one of her aids, were at their usual posts in her futuristically adorned "tea room" last night.

MANAGER AND PASTOR DEBATE SINS OF THEATER

the unpeachable rottenness at Hollywood," Dr. Stratton asserted. "The price of promotion for many girls and women upon the stage today is that they shall surrender their virtue, a theme which he dwelt upon for some time.

Alleges U. S. Bondage.

The question of control was then touched on by Dr. Stratton.

"I stand here and declare in the name of truth that it is unfortunate that the theater today has fallen almost entirely into the hands of a small group of Jews. The American people ought to have an American theater."

In the event of the theater making determined and persistent warfare upon the Christian Sabbath, it is amazing that the American people have permitted such control, and they ought to cast off that bondage."

"Vicious heroes and heroines" came in for some of Dr. Stratton's attention, to show that children are being exploited for gain in a ruinous way, and he cited Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, and Mary Pickford, with divorce blemishes on their record" and, capping the climax, Fatty Arbuckle, "with his idiotic, leering grin and the shadow of shame and sin upon him."

Brady Opens His Artillery.

When Dr. Stratton finished Mr. Brady took his pipe out of his mouth, a half, and heard not one fact," he began. "I heard him talk of girls on the stage of these conditions he speaks of. Why not speak of society, of the department store, of almost any place where men and women come together? Why pick on the stage?"

"After hearing his address I would take pleasure in pointing out how, in the last twenty years, horrible crimes and murders have been committed by ministers of the gospel. I will prove that more clergymen have been convicted of murder than actors, and that there are more clergymen in jail than actors."

A storm of disapproval burst from

Moths Gladly Risk Flame for Movie Spotlight

BY EDWARD DOHERTY.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Two women got off the Overland the other day, tipped the porter 25 cents, intrusted their baggage to a redcap, and boarded one of the slow moving, antique $3 an hour taxicabs for the Ambassador hotel.

Under the stars were all the moving picture magazines. In their faces was the look of conquest. In their clothes was the hint of Nasimova and Betty Compson.

One of the women was young and blonde. The other was old and blonde and plump. One had been pretty. One was the look of conquest. In their clothes was the hint of Nasimova and Betty Compson.

They didn't entice much over the congregation and a few cries of "Put him out" and hisses were heard.

"I will prove them when my friend here slanders poor little Mary Pickford."

There was a roar of laughter and a steady hissing, which seemed to astonish Mr. Brady and confuse him for a moment.

Should Not Attack Whole Stage.

"He speaks of what is going on on the stage," said Mr. Brady. "I say that is all right. He attacks it as a whole. I am not defending the wrong. If what he said is true he should exercise his duty as a clergyman and a citizen and go to the nearest police station, get a policeman, and raid the theater."

"There are ten good plays to one bad play in New York, and those would not prosper if the public didn't support them."

"I must say that Dr. Stratton said many true things, but why pick out the theater, why talk about the tragedy of Hollywood and divorce cases, when there are so many other examples in other parts of society? The respondent in the Stillman case was called an actress. She was not. The they signed, the register, waited for them to ask: "How far is Hollywood, please?" He looked at their names and asked which they had. His answer was ready before the question had been asked.

"About as far as Lake View or Rogers Park is from Chicago."

Hollywood is no different from any other part of Los Angeles, physically speaking. But because most of the studios are located here, Hollywood has become the synonym for the world of the movies, the new Bohemia, the new Babylon.

Hollywood bitterly resents the movies, which have made it populous and wealthy. Hollywood merchants make the movie folks pay cash, charge them fancy prices. Hollywood landlords will not knowingly lease apartments to them. Actresses are shabbily treated by the women of the beauty parlors, and taxed the limit.

As the days go by Mabel and her ma are applying daily at the studios for work, for parts even in a mob scene. They have taken a tiny bungalow, heated by gas, a mission effect house, with cardbord walls.

Day after day to the movies go Mabel and her fair white hope had come to Los Angeles to get into the movies. Any one could have told you that. The clerk waited politely when

IOWA FARMERS DISCONTENTED, BUT BACK G. O. P.

Troubles Are Blamed on Wilson Regime.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

ARTICLE VIII.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 12.—[Special.]

There is a lot of discontent among the farmers in this great agricultural commonwealth, but not enough to give the Democratic party hereabout any perceptible encouragement.

Iowa, according to the present indications, will continue to represent the at Washington to the Democratic senators, and probably by a solid Republican delegation in the house of representatives. Such political scrapping as one perceives is confined to the anks of the Republican party, little anything being heard from the Democrats, who appear to have gone down for the third time in this state.

Right now interest centers on the trivial for successor to Senator Kenyon, who has accepted appointment as judge of the United States Circuit

Court of Appeals and whose resignation from the Senate Gov. Kendall is swallowing.

Sees Lively Primary.

There is a contest for the appointment by the governor to fill the vacancy and there will be even a livelier contest for the Republican nomination in the primary, June 6, of a candidate for senator to serve out the unexpired Kenyon term, who will be elected in November.

Gov. Kendall has stated that he will appoint a man from northern Iowa, and that has narrowed the contest down to three candidates: Charles E. Pickett of Waterloo, who served with distinction in the national army of representatives a few years ago and who has become one of the most widely known and influential political leaders in the state; E. C. Cunningham, secretary of the powerful Iowa Farm Bureau federation, and Congressman L.

J. Dickinson, who is strong with the farmers and is the brother-in-law of Gardner Cowles, publisher of the Des Moines Register.

Must Favor Farm "Bloc."

The governor has asserted that the appointees must be favorable to the program of agricultural legislation induced by the farm "bloc" in congress, and favorable to soldier bonus legislation, and a sincere supporter of the prohibition amendment.

Pickett has the support of the Republican organization throughout the state to a conspicuous extent and of a dozen or more of the largest and most influential newspapers. He stands for legislation favorable to agriculture as the basic industry of Iowa, but he has asserted that if sent to Washington he will go as a representative of the farmers and not of a particular class of citizens.

Mr. Cunningham is the real farm

"bloc" candidate, having the powerful support of the organization which works hand in glove with the group in the senate of which Mr. Kenyon has been the acknowledged leader.

Many Republican politicians here believe that Mr. Cunningham is most likely to receive the appointment.

All to Try at Primaries.

In any event both Mr. Pickett and Mr. Cunningham and possibly Congressman Dickinson will be candidates for the nomination in the June primary, a contest in which the lines will be drawn pretty definitely between candidates whose appeal is to the farmers almost exclusively and

FOR SON AND ALIMONY

Miss Angelina Piza, sister of the former Mrs. Crane, who is here to press her claims against Herbert P. Crane for unpaid alimony and unrestricted custody of her son.

MISS PIZA HERE TO PROSECUTE ALIMONY CLAIM

Holds Petition to Keep Son in Kane Co. Invalid.

On her arrival in Chicago yesterday morning, the first statement made by Miss Elida E. Piza, Costa Rican beauty and former wife of Herbert P. Crane, was that she believed the signature on the petition for a restraining order filed last Friday by Edward L. Lyon, Mr. Crane's attorney, was not that of the St. Charles millionaire. She said she would have to compare the signature on the petition with those in letters from Mr. Crane.

Immediately on her arrival Miss Piza, with her sister, Miss Angelina E. Piza, went to the office of her attorney, Andrew R. Sheriff, where they discussed further steps in the fight for $70,000 back alimony which Miss Piza claims is due her.

Petition Valid, Attorney Says.

Mr. Lyon said Mr. Crane had sworn to the petition which asks an order to prevent removal of their son from Kane County, last November before he left Chicago.

"I have not heard from him since he left Trinidad for somewhere in South America," said Mr. Lyon. "It is probable that he may be in Patagonia, as he is inclined to go there and may have been received by a friend."

Miss Piza and her sister hotly denounced the allegations that Miss Piza would remarry, and branded the claims that the child, Raphael Antonio Piza Crane, was being "permitted to and taught to do things highly improper and indecent" as "just more filth."

Ignored Boy, Mother Says.

"Mr. Crane never paid attention to the boy," said Miss Piza. "If he happened to name him, he would brush him aside and not speak to him."

"The child is being brought up an American," corroborated Miss Angelina. "Only the other day his mother told him he must play in the snow because all American boys do that. I wish my father was here. He would give them a good knocking for speaking these lies."

PSH, MABEL WILL NOW LEAD US ALL IN HYMN NO. 421

It's Hollywood's Sunday School Singing.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

A Bible class of movie stars with Mabel Normand, Mary Miles Minter, and Charlie Chaplin sitting on the front seats at Hollywood, lessons in the ten commandments, and the teacher, former Postmaster General Will Hays, were suggestions made by the Rev. George G. Dowey in his sermon yesterday morning in the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland and Ogden avenues.

Decalogue for Movie Stars.

"We in America spend more money for the things that damn people than we do for the things which will make the nation great. Hollywood typifies the worst elements in modern life."

most valuable asset, but there is still room for a Bible class of movie stars with Elder Will Hays as teacher and the ten commandments as a text for

TRIBUNE FINDS ARMIES FORMING FOR CHINA WAR

Dr. Sun Plans Drive Soon on Peking.

The world's largest existing war is being fought in the interior of China. On its outcome may rest the fate of Japan's expansion into Asia and of American trade in the far east. Because of its remoteness in the teeming but backward populations of inner China little is heard of this war. Mr. Dailley has been assigned to investigate its extent and to clarify its meaning.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

WUCHOW, Kwangsi Province, China, Feb. 8.—(Courier to Canton.)

This is the end of the road for junk navigation on the route to Dr. Sun Yat Sen's headquarters at Kweilin, and only the smallest river craft can make the rest of the journey—200 miles. On this slender line of communication depends the southern government's army for its supplies for the proposed move against the north in the hope of overthrowing the Peking government (3). This 200 miles is through pirate infested country, making the transportation of supplies extremely perilous.

Despite the positive statement of Foreign Minister Wu Ting Fang and other members of the constitutional government that Dr. Sun Yat Sen will press northward immediately, THE TRIBUNE correspondent, after an investigation here, finds that it will be impossible for the southern president to advance before April.

Hopes for 100,000 Men.

In the meantime, Dr. Sun Yat Sen is recruiting and adding to his forces daily, hoping to have 100,000 well drilled men when the time comes to launch his drive. The second Kwantung division, under Gen. Hu Chung Shih, is now moving into position all along the section of the railway line of the line of communication. The division consists of the 4th and 7th brigades. Gen. Chen has ordered the 1st division to be retained at Canton.

Under the protection of the 24 division, military roads are being built from Wuchow to Kweilin (2), thus providing means for more rapid transport, with the consequent avoidance of pirates, and doing away with the delays caused by the rapids in the river. In the meantime, Dr. Sun Yat Sen is personally directing the training of the army. He is so busy that he even refuses to answer telegrams.

Plans Three Armies.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen's plan contemplates basing three armies on each Kweilin, Kweilin, and Shiluchow (1) for a move on the north toward Hankow in conjunction with a movement from Ichang of the armies of Szechuan (4). He expects to encounter Gen. Wu Pei Fu's troops somewhere in Hunan province, but he is counting on that province to come to his side when his armies penetrate the district. Gen. Wu Pei Fu has concentrated an army at

CHINA SUSPECTS SHANTUNG DEAL AT WASHINGTON

BY DONALD PATTERSON.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—The settlement of the Shantung question at Washington between the Chinese and Japanese delegates is not meeting with universal approbation, but rather is regarded with suspicion.

Representatives of the Chinese organizations in Shanghai yesterday passed a resolution denouncing Foreign Minister Yen and said that the various organizations cable their disapproval to the Chinese delegates at Washington. A resolution charging that the settlement flattered Japan and that it was only nominal was passed and ordered sent to the military governors, the provincial assemblies, and to organizations all over the country.

Hiatus at Centralized China.

The resolution ended as follows:

"If the Chinese are unwilling to become Corsairs they will wire to Washington that they refuse to recognize the signatures of the Chinese delegates, that they insist on the redemption of the Shantung railway by a cash payment, that they demand the cancellation of all the twenty-one demands, and that they denounce all national-trials."

Many merchants belong to the organizations sending the resolutions and the members of street railway unions.

Suspicion of Japs.

There seems to be a feeling among the Chinese that, if the railway is paid

SHE SENT NAMES
MANY TIMES AND THEN WAS LUCKY

PERSISTENCE WON

Horoscope Showers $500
on Persistent One.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Are you lucky? Did the horoscope pick you as one of those fortunates whose names won today's prizes? Look in the list on this page and see if your name is not there.

But don't be crestfallen or disheartened if you didn't win today; for there's another chance—mark your calendar. Send your name in again tomorrow, and maybe you will win. In sending your name use either this Tribune coupon on this page, or a sheet of paper of that size, and be sure to give all the information asked for, as it profoundly influences your horoscope findings.

Winner Sends Name Frequently.

Winning the first prize of $500 yesterday came as a great surprise to Miss Edna B. Jordan, 2661 Washington boulevard. She had sent in her name many times and was almost discouraged when all at once she won this big prize of $500. She is a native of the south, and has been wishing for an opportunity to return for a visit. The horoscope award will make it possible for her to return to her home in Memphis, Tenn., for an all summer visit with her invalid mother.

Another May Vacate.

Bertha Elizabeth Andersen, 7044 Woodlawn avenue, won yesterday's third prize of $100. She is a graduate of Hyde Park High school, and is now engaged in secretarial work.

The horoscope findings were almost perfect, she says. Miss Andersen hasn't quite decided what she will do with the money, but thinks she will take a vacation with it.

OKLAHOMA JUDGE
REFUSES TO QUIT
UNDER CRITICISM

Oklahoma, Okla., Feb. 12.—[By the Associated Press.]—Superior Judge H. R. Christopher of Okmulgee, who precipitated adverse criticism from many persons here by his discharge last Thursday of the grand jury investigating the affairs of the defunct Commissary, today declined to resign from his office at the present time, according to word sent here tonight by E. J. Dick, chairman of a resolutions committee, appointed by a mass meeting called to protest against discharge of the grand jury.

BLAME "MOONSHINE" FOR DEATH.

Anthony Gacki, 40, 4510 South Hermitage avenue, was found dead in his home yesterday. Police believe "moonshine" caused his death.

Miss Edna B. Jordan, who sent her name in many times before horoscope casting proved her entitled to the $500 prize.

Bertha Elizabeth Anderson, who won yesterday's $100 prize.

Prominent Society Dancer
Shot by Husband—Suicide

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Charles Strain, Peter Brown, Marie Lloyd, a society solo dancer of more than local repute, was shot and seriously wounded by her husband last night, who then killed himself. The shooting occurred at the home of the young woman's parents. Mrs. Strain was married to Charles Strain in Chicago a year ago, the wedding following an elopement.

for drunkenness in Boston numbered 72,893; in 1921 they were 56,469. For the entire Midwest in 1917 the arrests were 129,455; in 1921, 56,932. The total number of arrests for drunkenness for 1920 and 1921, put together, are less than those for any single full license year.

"The expenditure of $9,250,000 for enforcement by the prohibition department would be wise if not one dollar were returned to the federal government in fines, penalties, taxes, and forfeited bonds."

No one claims that the prohibition law is completely enforced. Neither is there any other criminal law fully enforced. The organized outlaw liquor dealers, encouraged by the utterances of Mr. Galligan and other liquor champions, make it difficult.

FINANCING THE BONUS.

With the steady advance in preparation for solider's bonus legislation reported from Washington, interest is growing in the means suggested for financing such a bill. The house ways and means committee, prompted, no doubt, by Secretary Mellon, has approved eight forms of special taxation for the purpose.

While THE TRIBUNE believes the end in this case, within reason, is more important than the means, there is no doubt that vigorous opposition to these special taxes will develop. In fact, it is already developing. The New York stock exchange, for instance, is making a strong protest against the increased tax on capital stock transfers. Business in general will oppose the proposed new tax on undivided profits of corporations. Millions of automobile owners will oppose the proposed tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline. A vast number of citizens will complain of increased postage costs.

So certain and so general will this opposition to the proposed special taxation be that it gives ground for suspicion that the taxes have been proposed to break down public support of the bonus. If that is their purpose, or likely to be their effect, other methods of financing should be sought.

The logical one seems to be a bond issue. The debt we owe the soldiers is a war debt, as clearly as the debt we owe our Liberty bond holders. Just as we financed other needs in their time and spread the obligation over a long period of years through the Liberty bonds, so can we finance this need and spread the obligation.

The government is now calling some $400,000,000 worth of 3 1/2 per cent Victory bonds for retirement. That indicates its financial possibilities. Probably the cash outlay for the bonus in the first year would not be much greater than that. The fact that every issue of treasury certificates or similar short term securities offered within a year has been greatly oversubscribed is even better evidence of the ability of the country to absorb a loan for this purpose. One such offering of approximately $500,000,000 a few months ago was subscribed for to the extent of almost $1,500,000,000.

It might even be advisable to make the initial financing with such short term certificates, say for a period of three years, at the end of which time, when money probably will be cheaper, the indebtedness could be turned into long term bonds.

That might have the additional merit of overcoming the objection of Liberty bond holders that the issuance of a new national bond issue now would drive down the price of their bonds. There is something in that argument. Liberties at 4 1/4 are not even now selling at par. To get par for a new issue without the intensive spirit of war service which helped sell the first issue would probably necessitate a rate above 4%. Probably that would reduce the price of the other and older bonds. But if temporary financing could provide for three years it is probable that such complaint could not stand at the end of that time.

In any event, we want the bonus.

THE AMERICAN DISEASE.

Dr. Edward Ochsner, an eminent physician, lectured the other day before the Chicago Medical Society on a disease called "chronic grouch," or, more scientifically, fatigue intoxication. The lecture should be repeated before business men, though overenthusiastic doctors may need it, too.

"The disease only attacks those mentally and physically alert who turn out prodigious amounts of work—for a time," said Dr. Ochsner. "It cuts down a class of men and women who are of great value to the community at a time when, through experience and with ripened years and judgment, they would otherwise have reached their period of highest capability."

The diagnosis is easy. The cure is not. Perhaps it can be easily stated: Don't overwork. But in America that is hard to avoid. A man here and there may try slowing down. If he has been fortunate in accumulation he can afford to, so far as his material means are concerned. That is not the most difficult phase of the problem. What makes slowing down hard is that when we slow down we are out of the only game America is really interested in. A man may have made enough for his material wants. He may be all dressed up; but there is no place to go.

There is no easy way out of this predicament. It is the result fundamentally of a general state of mind. We can't escape it until we escape from this state of mind. America is a workshop and some of us are trying to make it a moral gymnasium. We do not work to live. We live to work. We get our sense of life, our sense of fulfillment, out of objective activity and accomplishment, and our conception of the ends of existence are limited by this viewpoint. We do not work in order to enjoy living, to win means for leisure and the development of our capacities for enjoyment. We work without ulterior ends for the sake of activity, material power, competitive success.

Thus, when we stop work we are through; whereas men in other countries have a richer and broader conception of life and work for the fulfillment of that conception, for leisure to live.

There is much of real happiness in American life. But it is a narrow happiness. The old Puritan conception that this world is a vale of tears, a proving ground for eternity, largely influences American character. It is an athletic ideal, but it restricts American life and gives it an aridity which it ought not to have. If we are to have a high civilization we cannot afford to live in a moral barracks or a mere factory of material accomplishment. We are cheating ourselves of the best of life and foregoing, at least one of the objects of our forefathers, so highly valued that they named it among the objects for which the nation was founded—the pursuit of happiness. We pursue power, wealth, material success and possessions. We do not pursue happiness.

COLLEGE AMATEURS.

One of the qualifications necessary for selection for a Rhodes scholarship in Oxford is physical vigor, as shown in outdoor sports. Other qualifications are force of character and leadership, literary and scholastic ability and attainments. The Rhodes man in Oxford must have a fine combination of abilities and he must be an athlete.

The stipend he receives, $300 a year, with a bonus of $50, is given him partly because of his athletic ability. It is not all for that, but he could not qualify for the scholarship without being an athlete any more than he could qualify without being a promising student.

American boys and British colonials are helped in their education at Oxford, and they capitalize their proficiency in sports. Cecil Rhodes did not make professionals of them, even for the colleges of Oxford. That university gets some of the best American college athletes who compete for it against Cambridge, and frequently win for it Ziegler, Macdonald, Putnam, and many others have contributed to Oxford success.

The English assume that these American boys are not in Oxford primarily to play on their college teams and on the university teams. Nevertheless Rhodes made it possible for Oxford to get them. It is a curious thing that England, from which we get our social caste idea of amateur sport, thinks nothing of a procedure which would make play with detriment to their college work.

We have no patent medicine for the trouble which is now exciting the universities of the western conference, but we think that the present rules are based on conventions and traditions which are not sound in a democracy.

It is a good thing to increase the college opportunities of the nation and to attract and provide for athletic young fellows who like sports, who would like to go to college if they had the money, and who would like to have the fun of college games. That is a desirable class of young Americans who are muscular, active, and fine. They would be better if they had a college education, and if their ability in sports, say in baseball, could help them get the money for college without depriving them from college sports there might be a great many more of them in the schools.

Years ago a professional baseball player went through Yale because he wanted the education. He got his money for it by playing professional baseball in the summer. At school he could not play in intercollegiate contests, but he could coach the nine and play on the second nine against the first. He made a fine record in life, the better because he had determination to get a college education and got it.

We are not urging that if Grover Alexander wanted to go to the University of Chicago it would be fair competition to have him on the university ball team, but if Grover Alexander were 19 years old and wanted to go to college it would be fair to allow him to make the money for his schooling by pitching ball on a summer resort ball team.

The things desirable are that the young men should be in school for an education and that their scholarship records should show that they were trying to get it and that they had not been induced to go by being paid money and that they did not get money for playing for their schools.

The rest is a matter of adjustment. Scholarship tests can indicate what the boy actually is doing in school. In the old free days athletes matriculated for the course in penmanship—and needed it. We are not for that freedom, but colleges can be on the square with their sports without being unfair by their definition of the amateur standing.

In any event, we want the bonus.

EUROPE IN THE CARIBBEAN.

Philip Kinsley of THE TRIBUNE, traveling about in the Caribbean, finds the British and the French fully alive to the value of their island possessions which lie in an arc of the American trade routes to the Panama canal and the American naval base at Guantanamo. The improvement of the airplane and the submarine have given these islands new value and the British, recognizing that, are encouraging airplane development with subsidies.

They also are trying to unite the British possessions in a community bond and tie them more closely to Canada. They know the value of this fringe of islands which runs from off Florida nearly to the South American mainland. They are valuable to the United States and against American trade routes. They have no commercial value. Their natural commerce is with the United States.

They are geographic and strategic parts of the American zone, but they are in other hands because at the time when they might have been obtained for the United States we had in Mr. Wilson a President who was thinking of every other people than the American people. He could have obtained them as part compensation for the part America was to play in the war. The British and the French would have transferred them joyfully to get us into the war.

Aside from sentiment they have no use for the islands except as they may be used as bases against the United States and they have no rights which they can defend morally or otherwise except physically in the American zone. An American President was thinking about the brotherhood of man and he allowed the opportunity to go. The United States has tried from time to time to protect itself in the Caribbean by purchase and penetration, but this chance to clean the whole situation up was not given a thought.

We have no way of getting the British and French out now and the British are making good use of their opportunities.

Editorial of the Day

OUR FRIEND THE HOG.

[From the Breeders' Gazette.]

The hog made the midwest rich, and the hog is now rootin' us all back towards the broad highway of better times. Stockkeeping is the key-stone now, as always, in the great arch of American agriculture. Let the distressed sellers of corn and oats as grain take a lesson from what is happening these days in the busiest square mile of industrial activity in all the world—the Chicago stockyards. It is there that restored national prosperity is being bred.

DEMOCRACY IN JAPAN

[Chicago Tribune, Foreign News Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 10.—The recent death of Marquis Okuma, twice premier and one of the "grand old men" of Japan, naturally revived the question, What will become of the elder statesmen? The answer is plain to any one following the drift of sentiment in Japan. They will one by one be carried to their tombs and after a brief period of mourning will be forgotten, except for the occasional efforts of the historical writers.

Not that Marquis Okuma was a genro, except in name. At the time of his death there were but three of the real genros—Prince Yamagata (Yamagata died after this letter was written), Prince Saionji, and Marquis Matsukata. With these three all decisions rested. They never recognized SAIONJI.

Marquis Okuma was as such. When they reached an agreement on affairs of state they submitted the decision to Okuma. Of course, they were always approved, but never was he consulted.

GIVE 'EM (FRESH) AIR!

WHAT can we do save the babies during the late winter and early spring?

Timely, when the mother thought her baby safe if she could get him through the hot weather.

But the milk has been greatly improved and the mothers have so increased their knowledge and skill in caring for babies in hot weather that July and August are no longer the terrors they once were.

Last July was the hottest in fifty years, yet the records show that the baby death rate was not high, at least in certain cities. On the other hand, the sickness rate due to respiratory disorders most in evidence in the late winter and early spring.

It happens every now and then that the death rate of babies due to colds, coughs, pneumonia, etc., is kindred complaints in evidence during February and March exceed the death rates due to diarrhea in evidence during July and August.

What can mothers do to keep their babies healthy during the next two months?

The question is not one of feeding.

It is one of bathing and dressing the baby, and ventilating the rooms in which he lives.

If the weather is good enough to keep him out of doors all day and on a sleeping porch all night there is not much to do except to provide a comfortable bed.

In a discussion before the Southern Medical society it seemed to be the consensus that a large proportion of the babies could not keep out all day and all night with advantage, even in the south, unless it be in the far south.

But there are few sections of the country where the baby can stay out all day and sleep on a sleeping porch during the eight weeks of midwinter.

In a discussion before the Southern Medical society it seemed to be the consensus that a large proportion of the babies could not keep out all day and all night with advantage, even in the south, unless it be in the far south.

Nevertheless, it is a fact that the average city baby does not get out enough during the day time and sleeps in a room not ventilated enough in the night time.

Admitting that there are enthusiasts who push the fresh air care of babies in midwinter too far, it still remains a fact that a large number of babies die from lack of fresh air in winter.

If the baby is crowded together in rooms heated by stove, getting enough fresh air at night for the baby is not an easy matter. If the mother has other children for whom she must cook and wash is not easy to find the time during the day for the baby's sunlight and air.

Yet these problems are no more insurmountable than those of the meeting of which has reduced the summer death rate.

FOES OF TAXES TO PAY BONUSES BECOME ACTIVE

Manufacturers Oppose the Cash Feature.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Proposed taxation to finance the soldiers' bonus is stirring up a tempest of protest from varied interests.

Republican leaders in the house and senate, unable to agree thus far on details of the taxation scheme, are frankly worried by the rapidly organizing forces of opposition to tax proposals agreed upon by majority members of the ways and means committee.

See Greater Opposition.

Following walls of assault from the American Automobile association and allied major interests, protests from the national grange and the American farm bureau federation and outbursts from Wall street against a proposed tax on stock transfers, the National Association of Manufacturers today entered the lists with threats of dire political disaster to congressmen who will vote to increase the tax burden for bonus purposes.

Leaders of the ways and means committee and senate finance committee, however, are standing up under the strain of these assaults, which they frankly expect will gather greater force and momentum within a few days, and have no idea of abandoning the bonus legislative effort now definitely agreed upon. How to adjust the tax schedules to meet the divergent views of senate and house leaders is their present difficulty.

Calls Bonus "Economic Absurdity."

John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, contributed today's chapter of protest to the bonus history. Mr. Edgerton in opening his statement said that the industries of the country were not opposing generous and liberal care of disabled veterans or dependents of those who were killed or injured in the war, but that they do "severely oppose all propositions for cash appropriations from the federal treasury to pay bonuses, or so called 'adjusted compensation,' as being socially unwise, an economic absurdity, and politically preposterous."

The additional tax burden which the proposed law would entail, Mr. Edgerton says, "may prove to be the straw which breaks the industrial camel's back," and he submits statistics to show how the states themselves already are attempting to take care of the soldiers.

"With the exception of three states," he continues, "every state in the Union has passed legislation giving to, or authorizing for, world war veterans' aid, some exemptions or benefits."

I see but one, and folks downstate know Cook county will not make any measure. Or if, that is a reminder, left in it, against the previous constitution as a whole state, vote on representation.

New Models Arriving Daily

Frocks of both silk and wool are featured in the assortments in this section within the price range of $20 to $65. Advanced models for Spring are particularly delightful in their wealth of new features in the way of trimming and detail.

Sixth Floor, South, Wabash.

Collection of Women's Coats, Greatly Reduced

Sixth Floor, North, State.

HOMAGE PAID BY CITY TO LINCOLN ON ANNIVERSARY

Banks and Schools Closed Today.

Homage was paid to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, as rail splitter, as emancipator, and as martyr, in various ways, by soldiers and civilians, throughout the city yesterday, on the occasion of the 113th anniversary of his birth.

"Lincoln had the task of uniting a nation in political unity," said the Rev. James S. Stone, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, at Cass and Huron streets, speaking on Lincoln in his sermon. "We today face a greater task—that of uniting a nation in moral unity—because of the rapid growth of crime, increasing lawlessness, and the creeping in of the slimy serpent, pernicious."

Compared to Pericles.

Peter S. Lambros, editor of the Greek Star, spoke on "Lincoln as Pericles and Pericles as Lincoln" before the Sunday school in the First Methodist church, yesterday morning.

"We find a striking similarity in the problems solved by the wisdom and the statesmanship of Pericles and Lincoln," the editor said. "Both were great leaders and statesmen of high intellectual power, varied culture, clear vision, and democratic ideals, which were eventually brought to realization."

Pericles sowed the seeds of democratic principles, Mr. Lambros said, with the words: "We enjoy a form of government that is not the benefit of a few, but for all concerned"; but it was Lincoln who gave the meaning of democracy when he said, "that the government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

Dedicate Doorway.

Civil war veterans contributed their presence when an illuminated doorway was presented by the First Presbyterian church to the neighborhood of 41st street and Grand boulevard yesterday noon. The doorway was dedicated to Lincoln and Washington.

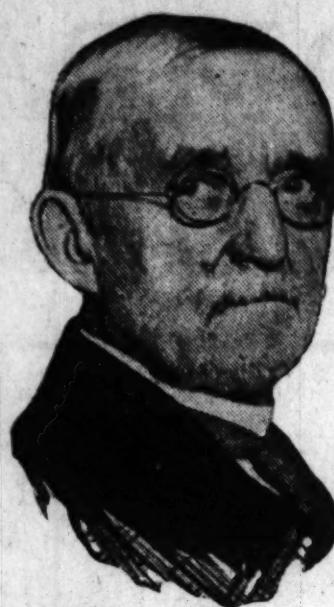

Judge Wallace McCamant, who nominated Vice President Coolidge at the 1920 Republican convention, spoke on "Abraham Lincoln—the man sent from God," at a meeting at Orchestra hall last night of the Sunday Evening club. David R. Forgan, president of the National City bank, assisted at the observances. A chorus of 100 sang patriotic songs.

Thinened ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic "fell in" at Memorial hall yesterday afternoon to salute the memory of their "wartime" President.

Closed Today.

Chicago banks and schools, the Board of Trade, and the stock and commodity exchanges will be closed today, Lincoln's birthday having fallen on Sunday. So will the courts and offices in the city hall and the county and service to American citizenship.

Mail Strike Worse.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—A dispatch to the London Times from Allahabad, British India, says the railway strike there is assuming most serious proportions. Between Allahabad and stations where Indians were in charge have been entirely deserted by their staffs. An armored train left Allahabad Saturday to investigate trouble reported along the line.

Freight transportation has been entirely suspended from Mogalserai to Kalya, northwards, and to Jubulpore, eastward. Important industries are unable to obtain coal.

The strike is reported to have originated through an incident on Feb. 2, when an Indian fireman at Tunala complained of having been brutally assaulted with a shovel by a European brakeman and thrown from the engine. Within three hours the entire Indian locomotive staff at Tunala struck. A magistrate investigating the affair characterized the fireman's story as a fabrication.

'Hide and Seek' New Game of Canadian Bootleggers

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 12.—The recent Canadian court decision that it was legal to transport liquor to the border for export purposes has changed the whole business of rum running across the Niagara river. The night dangers are all eliminated. The smugglers now load their fast motor boats on the Canadian shore under the supervision of Canadian customs officials and dart off to the American side where they land long before warning can be telephoned to the American customs officers.

JOHN RASMUSSEN.

[TRIBUNE PHOTO.]
EMINISCENCES of Lincoln were told to the members of the First Methodist Sunday school, Clark and Washington streets, yesterday by John Rasmussen. Mr. Rasmussen served on the Monitor in the civil war and heard the address of President Lincoln to the crew. He has been librarian of the Sunday school for forty-eight years and has missed few sessions in that time. He also is an usher in the church.

federal buildings. The retail stores and the stockyards will be open as usual.

James Edgar Brown will speak on "Lincoln the Patriot and Leader" and John T. Richardson on "Lincoln as a Lawyer" at the Hamilton club of Chicago at 1 o'clock today. The club's chorus will sing patriotic songs.

U. OF LINCOLN MEMORIAL ASKS FOR 2 MILLIONS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Dr. George A. Hubbell, president of Lincoln Memorial university, addressed a gathering here tonight on the institution's need for $2,000,000 and at the same time his words, transmitted by wireless, were being taken down by students at the university in Cumberland Gap, Tenn.

The institution was founded twenty-five years ago and serves the students in the surrounding mountains. It was started with only one building—a sanitarium harking back to the boom day of a health resort. Now it has ten large brick and stone buildings and a number of smaller ones and is seeking more. Some were erected by the students themselves.

Reviewing the history of the co-educational university, Dr. Hubbell said: "Today, the 113th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, and the quarter century mark of its own career, it stands at the threshold of a great future and service to American citizenship."

LINCOLN WAS WAR STRATEGIST, PERSHING SAYS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12.—In his address here tonight on Abraham Lincoln, Gen. John J. Pershing paid heed to a new side of the life of the great emancipator in discussing Lincoln's war strategy.

"In considering his life and his many-sided genius," said Gen. Pershing, "little has been said of his grasp of military affairs except by way of criticism. As commander in chief of the armies of the north, he was the burden of the war. It was vital to the nation to direct right the energies of a people unprepared for war in the struggle for the preservation of the union.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING.

Mastered Fundamentals.

"Without military training or equipment, but with a fund of common sense and an exceptional capacity for concentrated thought upon any subject that came up for determination, he was called upon to consider grave questions of strategy in the conduct of the war. Considering his own experience in the conduct of life, he clearly saw and understood the important moral factors upon which victory ultimately depends, and became a master of the fundamental principles of war."

Gen. Pershing read extracts from President Lincoln's correspondence with generals in command of the union armies to show the military responsibilities that fell upon the shoulders of the "commander in chief."

Proved a Strategist.

"The letters that I have read," said Gen. Pershing, "show the impress of Lincoln's thorough knowledge of the conduct of war. They sound like the words of a trained strategist. It is astonishing that such matched wisdom should be found in a man who up to a few years before had given no thought to the art of war."

"But, after all, military strategy is but the application of common sense, through the exercise of which all principles of strategy have been evolved, and Lincoln's fund of common sense seemed inexhaustible. Time and again he gave counsel to his successive commanders on the Rappahannock at Gettysburg, which demonstrate the clarity of his judgment and his accurate grasp of situations."

Source of Lincoln's Greatness.

Vice President Coolidge, the other speaker at tonight's meeting, said:

"It is not to the city of Washington that men must turn if they would understand Abraham Lincoln. The beginning and the end of his nature were here with the life which he carried with him. Too often the world turns its eyes to the big places, thinking that from them will come its revelations and its great events, forgetful that a greater wisdom is in those who 'mind not higher things, but condescend to men of low estate.'

"The greatest epoch in all human history began in a manager. This great American, the foremost world figure of the nineteenth century, came out of a frontier clearing and spent his life 'manned in a village of a few hundred souls.'

"God rules, and from the Bethlehems and the Springfields he sends forth his own to do his work."

AGREEMENT OF CROWE-BRUNDAGE FACTS LOOMS

Republican factions led by State's Attorney Crowe and Attorney General Brundage are expected to near a working agreement for the April primaries today.

A meeting of the ward committees and leaders who are supporting the slate placed in the field by the state's attorney will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in his office. At this meeting, it is understood, the Crowe forces will endorse the candidacy of Charles Ringer for county treasurer.

Ringer, at present a member of the board of assessors, was originally selected for this office by the Brundage forces. Their action led to the split with the forces headed by former Gov.

Charles S. Deneen, who insisted that they be permitted to name the candidate for county treasurer.

See Two Cornered Fight.

When the Brundage men refused to withdraw Ringer the Deneen forces placed Wallace G. Clark, former sanitary district treasurer, in the field as their candidate. The Clark forces filed no petition for this office.

With the Crowe and the Brundage forces united behind Ringer it looks as if there is a possibility of these being a two-cornered instead of a triangular fight at the primaries. The Crowe forces have already endorsed the candidacy of William R. Parker, a Brundage man, for renomination as clerk of the Criminal court.

On the other hand the Brundage forces have placed no candidate in the field for sheriff, for which office the Crowe forces are supporting Coronor Peter M. Hoffman. In fact, there are no Brundage and Crowe men opposing each other for the principal nominations and the basis of a working agreement has already been afforded.

May Withdraw Some Candidates.

It is possible that this can be perfected by the withdrawal of candidates for some of the minor offices, such as county superintendent of schools and county commissioners. The question of making these withdrawals will be considered at the meeting today, as will also the question of endorsing some of the other Brundage candidates.

It is not expected, however, that a complete compact will be made today. Attorney General Brundage is expected to be out of the city most of the week. On his return, however, an arrangement may be perfected which will narrow the primary fight.

Do Not Want U. S. Rule; Fear Dry Law.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

FORT DE FRANCE, Martinique,

Feb. 12.—The colored population of the French West Indies does not want American rule or American laws and they are bitterly opposed to any idea of the surrender of this territory as part payment for the war loans.

There were demonstrations against Americans in Martinique when it was first proposed to give the island to the United States. However, the people were reassured that the French policy against such action.

France is holding both the sentiment and the trade of the islands.

The possession of these islands is of strategic importance because of their situation with reference to British and American bases, because they have been made suitable for naval bases and because of the French.

Defenses in the Hills.

Port de France, which is the chief port of Martinique, is lightly garris-ned and the guns are old, but during the war there were defenses in the hills manned by thousands of soldiers.

Now the native soldiery has taken the place of the French.

The harbor has not been improved and ships are loaded by basket, women doing part of the work. The legislature is elective and is composed chiefly of colored members who have been striving to improve the harbor for thirty-five years. There is a French

DISCARDED SUITOR PLEDGES $500 TO KEEP HIS TEMPER

When George Tipner, 21 years old, 3004 South Central Park avenue, saw another man in the parlor basking in the favor of Miss May Peterik, 17, 3007 South Trumbull avenue, it moved him to jealous rage.

When the other man, Joseph Zmuda, 3029 Florynay street, had departed, Tipner entered Peterik's home, approached her for admittance upon Zmuda, and conducted himself improperly, according to Miss

Haled into court Saturday on Miss Peterik's charge of disorderly conduct, Tipner signed a peace bond of $500, and at Judge John A. Bugbee's suggestion he decided to move from the neighborhood.

ly, but there would be rebellion if the United States were to come into possession of the islands and attempt to enforce certain laws, particularly prohibition. The future of the sugar industry led to investment in rum and the failure of this would lead to bankruptcy for many. There is little drunkenness here, although wines and rum are the cheapest in the country.

THE CHILDREN AND GEORGE WASHINGTON

More Entries in the Race for $11,650 in The Tribune's Prize for School Children and Teachers.

Here are more of the essays by boys and girls entered in the George Washington prize contest being conducted by The Tribune. The contest closes on Washington's birthday, Feb. 22.

Judgments Were Sure.

When George Washington was a boy he was always training himself for an active manhood. In doing this he was always one of the first to partake in all sorts of athletic sports.

Few mothers ever had a more affectionate and dutiful son, and no son a more devoted mother. There are many of us who do not realize what we owe to this mother for the way she governed us.

His mind was great and powerful; although it was slow in operation and aided little by imagination, it was sure in conclusions.

The strongest feature in his character was prudence. Washington never acted until every circumstance and every consideration was maturely weighed.

His temper was naturally irritable and high toned, but reflection and resolution had obtained a firm and habitual ascendancy over it. He was not an affectionate man, but he exactly calculated every man's value and gave him a solid esteem proportionate to it.

The whole his character was perfect, but in a few points indifferent, and it may truly be said that never did nature and fortune combine more completely to make a man of such rare worth.

After George Washington's education was meager in comparison with that of Theodore Roosevelt, they were akin by nature to aggression. In the minds of the people of the nation he became identified by his stately figure and masterful face, and he still remains the "father of his country."

Had Great Vision.

We all know of the semi-fictitious legends concerning Washington's childhood, of his military exploits, and of his becoming the first president of the United States, but comparatively few of us know of the intense interest shown in the proposed constitution on American soil Washington's policies.

Having been a delegate to the convention at Philadelphia in 1787, Washington advocated the federal constitution, though it was ardently opposed by Patrick Henry and other influential Virginians. Were it not for Washington's support, the constitution might never have been adopted; were there

FARMERS WILL USE HORSES FOR SPRING PLOWING

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 12.—[Special.]

After taking their full share of the three and a half billion dollar loss charged to producers of this country last year, farmers in Illinois are going to do everything they can to cut down the cost of growing this season's crops.

With plowing only a few weeks ahead they are already figuring closely on their farm power and labor problems. They are not concerned so much with speed in putting in their crops as they are in ways to save every penny they can in planting, cultivating, and harvesting.

Losses from Wild Buying.

Farmers are already bringing their horses in from the pastures and driving them to the barns, preparing for an early spring. Around Danville farmers are planning to use horses in doing their spring work as much as they can. Driving from farm to farm and gathering first hand information from farmers in Vermilion county, I discovered that the reckless buying of expensive farm implements that were not needed has forced many farmers into bankruptcy this winter and others have suffered heavy losses.

The price of farm implements could be found for the tractor. Some of the farmers have been successful with them, while others say they would rather do their work with horses, particularly this year.

"I had a tractor last year and owned it six months," said A. H. McFarland, who lives near Danville, "but traded it for some steers and horses, and lost money in the deal. I can run my farm cheaper with horses. Besides, we are not getting a good price for our corn and are paying out good money for gasoline and oil. Horses are cheap and it costs very little to feed them."

Not for Small Farmer.

William Leverich, Danville, has been using a tractor on his farm of 350 acres for two years. "I have found the tractor to be a paying proposition where a man has enough land to cut down the number of horses he is using," he said. "I think the man who is running a small farm has little business with a tractor."

Farmers in Champaign county do not have the money to buy tractors this spring, according to C. H. Oathout, farmer adviser. He says that the tenants and landlords in this county are in about the same boat.

BY J. L. JEM
Detroit, Mich., Feb. 12.—Tractor experts attached to the Ford Motor Company are here today to join the tractor on Henry Ford's auto. They originally disagreed on the practicability of Mr. Ford's tractor, but have since agreed that two tractors will eventually be used in the field work on American farms when tractors and power are in general use.

TRACTOR EXPERT ATTACK ON FORD CAMP LAUNCHED

No New Price Cut Planned
by Either Concern.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Tractor experts attached to the General Motors corporation staff rallied round today to join the general attack on Henry Ford's automotive camp. They openly disagreed with the practicability of Mr. Ford's recent statement, published in The Tribune, which averred that twenty-one days' work a year will eventually suffice for all field work on American farms when tractors and power machinery are in general use.

Also they differed decidedly with statements of eastern Illinois farmers that tractors this year may be used economically only on farms of 160 acres or more.

Meant Mission Has Failed.

"If farmers get tractor experts to a point where their work can be done in twenty-one days, then manufacturers of tractors have failed dismally in their mission," declared the technical expert for "Sampson," the General Motors' tractor. "It is only when we can educate the farmer to use his tractor 365 days in the year that the power farming movement will reach its goal."

"To date there have been found 189 practical uses for the tractor on the farm, including that of plowing, belt work churning, running the windmill, operating the thrasher and sheller, stump pulling, rocking the baby, mending and building roads, hauling goods—these are a few important of the functions of the tractor every day of the year."

Good for Other Purposes.

"Tractors in practical use today are saving money for truck gardeners as well as for owners of thousand acre ranches. Like the motor truck, the tractor has reached the point of a necessary utility in every type of farm ing."

The manufacturers admitted freely that their farm market this spring is going to be a "tough" one, due to the drop in prices of farm products

POLISH PRINCE IS HERE; ON HIS WAY BACK TO POLAND

Prince Casimir Lubomirski, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of Poland, who has been recalled to Warsaw, arrived in Chicago Saturday for three days' visit here. He will deliver farewells messages to Senator Borah, Attorney General Daugherty, and to Senator Borah, asking the release of 113 "political prisoners" in Leavenworth and Atlanta.

At the Blackstone hotel he expressed hope in the future of Poland. "Government finance," he said, "is improving with the economic conditions affecting the people."

Poland is demobilizing its armies. We hope to see the old questions of boundaries settled soon. A new era of diplomatic relations between countries has been opened up by the Washington conference. The good example set by the conference here will have its influence on the European meeting."

THE VENGEANCE OF
HENRY JARROMAN
BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.
Henry Jarroman, released from prison, to which he was sentenced twenty years before for the murder of Charles Eddie, learns that John Camden, his one time friend, who stole from Camden all the long years in prison, and his embittered heart bids him make Camden's daughter his wife.

The girl believes her name to be Nadia Quest. She is snatched by a tycoon by the name of Wifred Stranack. He loves her and asks her to marry him. Lou Jarroman, his father, is starting when he recognizes a ring Nadia wears and knows who she is. He has nourished his hatred of Nadia for all the long years in prison, and his embittered heart bids him make Camden's daughter his wife.

INSTALLMENT XXXVI.
HE TELEGRAPHED FOR THREE.

"I've told you once that I've not come to do you any harm," said Jarroman sternly.

"Then what have you come for?" asked the girl. "Her demand that he should explain his presence could not fairly be denied. But he shrank from a statement of the full truth.

"I've come to see you about your father," he said evasively. "My father! Wot, is 'e alive—the mean, skulkin' 'ound?"

"Yes, he is alive," said Jarroman. "Whether he is a mean, skulking bound, I don't know—you are entitled to your opinion. But your father has a certain amount of money and he is anxious to make amends to you for his neglect."

"Tell 'im not to 'urry 'isself," said Nell. "I could 'a done with a father a few years back, but I ain't no use for one now. Tell 'im from me to give his money to a sky pilot—he'll need one with 'is conscience."

"Do you know your father was imprisoned for twenty years—that he only came out a few months ago?" asked Jarroman.

He was surprised at the look of consternation that came into the girl's face.

"Jes like me!" she exclaimed bitterly. "Gorn and put me blinkin' foot in it first off. But 'ow was I to know if you didn't tell me?"

"Quite so," said Jarroman. "There is nothing to be sorry about."

"What did 'e get twenty stretch for? 'E must 'ave been a bad 'un."

"Manslaughter," replied Jarroman. "He tried to escape twice—that's why he served the full sentence."

"Poor ole dad!" exclaimed Nell, her eyes filled with tears, and Jarroman gaped at the facile sentimentality of the class. "Well, bring 'im along, mister, an' let's have a look at 'im."

"Yes," said Jarroman thoughtfully, "you shall meet your father. But you thought I was a furniture man or something. Are you in debt?"

"I'm not in debt," she replied. "I'm speakin' of you, mister."

"Well, while I am making the arrangements for you to meet your father, I—would not like to think of your being hard up. On his account you must let me make you a small advance."

As he spoke, he took his note case from his pocket. He did not wish to give her too much at the start, so handed her a five pound note and three currency notes.

"That will make things comfortable for the next few days, I think," he said.

"Ere, you ain't kiddin'?" demanded Nell. "You really mean me to take this money—and it's me father's money, mind? You can take your affidavit on that?"

"Of course," said Jarroman. "You don't imagine that I'm going to pay you off?"

"Golly, me dream's come true!" exclaimed the girl. "No offense, mister, but I ain't been off abain."

"I'm comin' to see you again in a day or two," he repeated, and without waiting for the girl's reply, he hastened out a trail in the Waterloo Road. He gave his address mechanically. His brain was seething.

Reaching his flat, he locked himself in his study and refused to come out for dinner. Four hours he sat silent while the daylight faded. When darkness came he did not switch on the light.

"My daughter!"

The Lady Margaret Home for the Daughters of Convicts, the factory, and the slum had done their deadly work. The girl he had seen might be a dozen good things—honest, courageous, virtuous; but she was his daughter, and she had been thrust into an alien class by the hand of John Camden.

None now that treacherous pity for Nadia's youth and grace that had led him to do with his purpose—gone, trampled into the garbage of Hucklester's road. Gone that ridiculous respect for her dignity, her diligence—gone, drowned by Nell's raucous laughter. Gone, every memory of doubt—burnt from his brain in that great hour of vengeance.

His hatred of her choked him. Well, excellently well, had Nell armed him against Nadia.

"Postoffice? I want to send a telegram. Ready? Name—Theed."

Telegraphic address, Tomes, London. Please come here at once—Jarroman. That's right. It will be delivered first thing tomorrow? Thank you."

He heard the message read over and hung up the receiver. Then he rang for the parlor maid. He switched on the light just before the woman entered.

"I am leaving here tomorrow and shall shut the place up. You and cook have given me every satisfaction, but I can no longer retain your services. You will each receive three months' wages tomorrow morning in lieu of notice."

The parlormaid gave him a startled glance, thanked him nervously and departed.

The moment she had gone he turned out the lights again, and sat staring into the gloom, his teeth bared, his fingers crooked.

"Ah, there you are, mon ami! Something told me you would come to night!" Claudine Crayne extended a dazzling hand and smiled brilliantly at Theed, the lawyer. The smile did not last long, she added just above her breath.

"Theed! The little drawing room! I must pass on into the spacious apartments, where a fortune could be lost or won in a heartbeat. He watched the play as an elderly cleric watches a Sunday school treat. He was accosted by many, but to none did he give his full attention. At mention of the Stranack, Jarroman's wedding his expression became positively cherubic.

"O yes, I was there," he pattered. "Yes, lovely—lovely—I don't know when I've seen a lovelier bride. No, I know nothing about her father, but the Duocentesse seemed delighted at the match. O yes, wealthy, I believe—"

It was half past eleven to the second when he slipped into what Claudine had designated as "the little drawing room." He found Claudine already there.

"Did you go to that wedding?" she asked him abruptly.

"O, yes, I was there," returned Theed from force of habit. "I don't know when I've seen a lovelier bride."

"Quite so," cut in Claudine, "but I shall find all that in the society news tomorrow. What I wanted to ask you is—how soon do you make the next move?"

Theed examined his beautifully polished nails with extraordinary interest.

"That is for you to say, dear lady."

"For me?"

"Assuredly. You have not expressed your good-will yet, and it is impossible for me to proceed without it."

Claudine laughed angrily.

"What you mean is—have I any objection to your murdering Jarroman?" she said brusquely.

"I have no objection," she said and her voice was like cold steel. Theed eyed her narrowly.

"She's been to see Jarroman and he's turned her down," ran his thoughts.

"Excellent! A woman scorned!"

"Then let us get to business without delay," he said aloud, and it was as if he addressed his most important client. He took a seat near her and, leaning forward, began to speak to her in low tones.

She listened, replying in monosyllables to his few questions. The gray of her eyes had shifted to pure green.

On the morning of the following Nadia's wedding day, Theed, over his long and leisurely breakfast, was entrancing himself with the contemplation of Nadia's conformed happiness.

Theed had cast self-deception to the point where it definitely dominated him, past the police, or faced with the sudden chace of illicit gain, he was constitutionally unable to consider any subject whatever, save from the viewpoint of a benevolent elderly gentleman.

"Such a charming girl! Perfectly charming! What a lucky young man! Dear me! It makes one sigh for one's lost youth, and I'm sure I hope it will all turn out for the best."

Deep in his inner consciousness he may have interpreted the last words as a wish that his plan for blackmailing Nadia, and to that end, if necessary, murdering her supposed father, might be highly successful. But the winking part of him accepted it at its face value—as a pious wish for the happiness of the young couple.

At ten-thirty he left his sumptuous bachelor flat, entered his car, and was driven to his office.

He had scarcely entered his inner sanctum when his junior brought him a telegram.

"The caretaker gave me this, sir. I opened it, of course. It's from Mr. Jarroman."

"From Mr. Jarroman—ah, yes," said Theed, taking the telegram. "Dear me! Mr. Jarroman wishes me to see him at once. What are my appointments for this morning?"

"You have an appointment at noon, sir, but none before that."

REV. WILLIAMSON
QUITS PULPIT TO ENTER CITY HALL

New Thompson Appointee
Resigns as Pastor.

The Rev. J. H. Williamson, last week appointed commissioner of law enforcement by Mayor Thompson, yesterday announced his resignation as pastor of the Normal Park Methodist Episcopal church before his congregation.

Dr. Williamson read a statement asking for cooperation from the police and other law enforcement organizations, but made no formal announcement of the policy which he will pursue as an commissioner.

The public, however, has an inkling of Dr. Williamson's ideas on the matter of morals. His efforts will be directed at the time a point auction bridge game rather than the two-bit dice game in the back alley.

Mr. Volstead Forgotten.

In the welcome printed in the program for the dinner dance is this bold paragraph:

"Forget all about Mr. Volstead and make merry. No one is being starred or even featured over the other here this evening of our Lord. No one name is out in lights and the 'No. 1' dressing room is out in the darkened alley."

"Shoot the whole works!"

—THE PRESS CLUB OF CHICAGO.

"By Lou M. Houseman, president."

"On fully half of the tables liquor bottles, pocket flasks, and liquor tubes were produced and drinks mixed. At the president's table a large bottle was produced that looked like a whisky bottle. President, the president of the club poured a portion of tea and then added water—all of which he drank to show that he had forgotten Mr. Volstead.

President's Note Needed.

"If once you're prosecuted it would include the fashionable elite in whose parlors poker, whist, and euchre parties differ only in degree from their evil companion of 'craps' in the alley."

The Rev. Mr. Williamson's successor will be chosen when the committee meets again on Saturday.

W.C.T.U. PLANS TO BOMBARD PRESS WITH "DRY" TALK

Fearful lest the semi-wets should sway the November elections, the national headquarters of the W. C. T. U. in Evanston yesterday issued a manifesto declaring that they would meet publicity with publicity.

Their war cry is sounded in the "Lincoln edition" of the Union Signal, the official publication, edited by Mrs. Anna Gordon, president of the union.

"Sound the alarm," it reads. "We are going to talk down prohibition and talk up prohibition a success."

Their war cry is sounded in the "Lincoln edition" of the Union Signal, the official publication, edited by Mrs. Anna Gordon, president of the union.

They will be occupied with efforts to flood the newspapers with falsehoods, misrepresentations, and compromising statements half true and half false.

"This is their aim, to make the public believe national prohibition is a failure, and because it is a failure and can not be remedied, they have elected to repeal it and permit the return of the traffic in light wines and beer, which would mean a nullification of the amendment.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Fourteen teams composed of some of the best bicycle riders in the world were sent away last night at 9 o'clock in the Coliseum on the first lap of the six day grind. The large field was put in motion by County Clerk Robert E. Kader.

From the first report of the pistol the riders settled down to pedal in earnest. There were frequent jams, and it is apparent any of the teams will try to steal a lap at the first good chance. Several money prizes were offered for mile sprints, and the riders showed they are in condition by circling the ten lap track at a dizzy pace.

Kockler-McNamara Lead.

At the end of the first series of ten two mile sprints Ernest Kockler of Chicago and Rogie McNamara of Newark, N. J., led the field with 25 points. Willie Coburn of St. Paul and David Lands of Irvington, N. J., scored 23 points, while Carl Stockholm of Chicago, teamed with Alfred Grenda of Australia, was third with 22 points. Each of the fourteen teams broke into the point column.

Willie Hanley of San Francisco, who is teamed with Alfred of Australia, tonight returned to wear the number "12" on his back. He had two bad spills on Saturday, and before the race Referee Chapman permitted him to wear "14," the same number as his partner.

Large Crowd at Start.

A large crowd saw the opening. There were at least 7,000 fans in the building when the riders started on the long journey. The race will end at 11 o'clock on Saturday night.

CRAFTSMEN PLAY FINAL BASKET GAMES FRIDAY

The basketball championship of the Craftsmen's league will be played off Thursday and Friday nights at Broadway armory. The play will be between the sectional survivors of the original four divisions of the league, as follows:

North section-Anaite-Sincere, Commerce. Northwest section-Ben Franklin, Brother.

South section-Kosmos, Cosmopolitan.

RENNER OUT OF TITLE CUE MEET

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 12.—Due to business pressure, Emil Rennier of Youngstown, O., has withdrawn from the international amateur billiard tournament which opens here tomorrow night, and J. E. Cope Morton of the Union League club of Philadelphia has been substituted in his place.

The opening game tomorrow will be between Edouard Roudil of France and Francis S. Appleby of New York. On Tuesday afternoon Ary Bok of Holland will meet Percy N. Collins of Chicago, and Wednesday night Morton will meet Edgar Appleby of New York. All games will be 500 points, with anchor shots barred. George Lewis of Chicago will serve as referee.

HUNGARIAN TEAM BEATS THISTLES AT SOCCER, 1 TO 0

Two closely contested games of soccer rewarded a crowd of 500 fans who braved the weather yesterday for the trip to the Bricklayers' field. In the opening tiff, Chicago Hungarians of the International league defeated Thistles of the Chicago club, 1 to 0. In the afternoon the Bricklies and Sparrows Union elevens played to a scoreless tie.

The Hungarians won their hard fought match on a penalty kick after fifteen minutes of the first half.

The Sparta-Bricklies' tussle was one of the best seen on local lots this season, both teams displaying sterling power on defense.

Canadians-Corinthians Tie.

At 49th avenue and 19th street, the Chicago Big Five basketball team yesterday defeated the Rockford Thomas Cats, 47 to 42, at Dexter Park pavilion. The Big Five jumped off to an early lead and rounded the half with a 19 to 12 advantage.

The Rockford lineup included Lauri Wauhala and Julie Mee, former world records of Illinois stars, and Don White, former Purdue player. Walquist and Mee each sank two baskets while White sank five baskets and six free throws. For the Big Five, Feeney and Johnson did the heavy work.

Answers:

At the present time not a few persons are carrying on skunk farming and endeavoring to develop a strain of black animals by selective breeding.

The food of the skunk is the same as the various animals that are eaten by the biological survey. It has been found that although it feeds on insects, it also consumes a large number of noxious rodents.

In fact, the much maligned skunk is a valuable animal, because it will eat when it comes to cleaning up rats and mice.

Field mice, gophers, rats (that infest farm buildings), pocket mice, chipmunks, and even rabbits are included in the skunk's menu.

It is hard to describe this peculiar characteristic. It isn't exactly lack of Reich would stand up to a hammering long after he had stopped fighting back.

He was "game to take it." So is Fulton, but when he is hit he loses all aggressiveness. Gus Ruhlin, the Akron Giant, was troubled with the same thing to a less degree. He would fight like a streak until he was hard hit, and then stand doggedly up against a beating without fighting back. Other fighters, like McGovern, Britt, Nelson, Leonard, Kilbane, Gaston, and that lot of ring game cacks, always fought harder when they were in danger.

AFFECTS MEN IN OTHER SPORTS.

I've noticed the same thing often in college sports. Some of the finest athletes in America, who would run themselves out to the last ounce of their endurance and fall as they crossed the finish line, couldn't play football.

They had courage, but in a matter of personal contact with other men they couldn't do their best.

Everard Thompson of Princeton, for instance, the great all around athlete, came out for football and failed to make good.

He was a beautiful specimen of an athlete, yet couldn't measure up with men of inferior physique in the personal clash.

Chicago Mat Rules Praised.

Chicago has the right idea about running wrestling matches, enforcing decisions in all bouts, two falls out of three, and the referee to render a decision and pick a winner in case there are no falls. Draws eliminated and all that sort of thing.

They only try to handle wrestling without rules. Chicago had more unfortunate experiences with the mat game than any other city in the country, possibly excepting New York.

For years Chicago was the wrestlers' paradise and the city had suffered off many a crooked match and took many a big gate without delivering the genuine goods. The last great fiasco was the Gotch-Hackenschmidt match, with a gate of $104,000. There have been others since that time, of course, but nothing on so huge a scale.

Wherever You Go More White Owls will be smoked in 1922 —

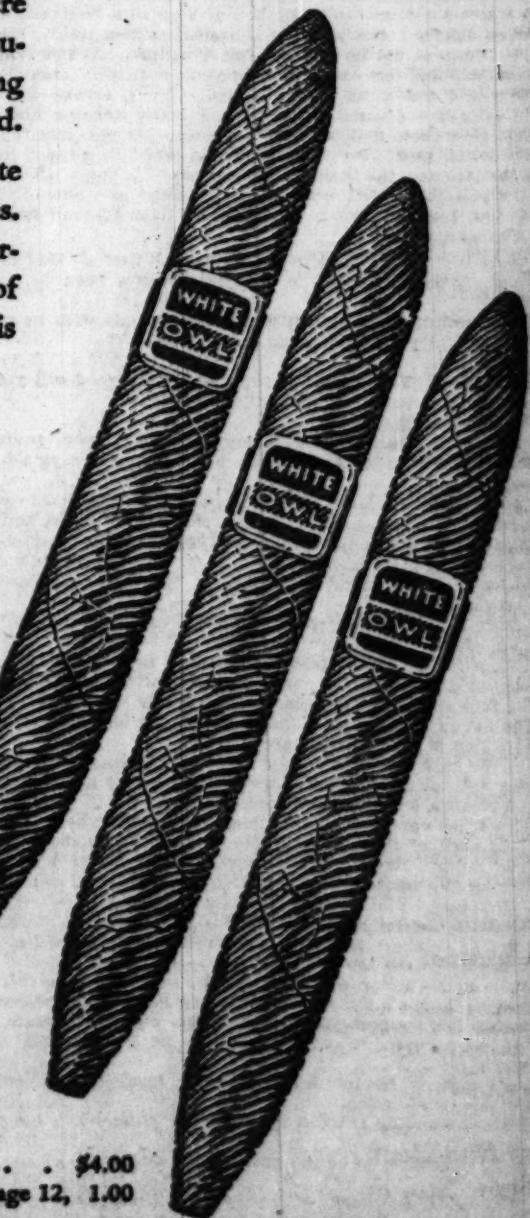

FIVE YEARS AGO the manufacturers of White Owl planned to make White Owl the largest selling cigar in the country. They planned to produce a cigar that by sheer weight of the quality that was in it and of the low price at which it was offered, would attain a sales volume that would justify the makers' policy of accepting only a small margin of profit per cigar.

And that point was reached in 1921. Men everywhere turned to White Owl as an unusually high quality cigar offered at a common-sense price. White Owl became the cigar leader of the country. More White Owls were smoked than any other cigar. The faith of the manufacturers in the cigar and in the ability of the smoking public to recognize unusual cigar value was justified.

So much for 1921. In 1922, the makers of White Owl look forward to even greater White Owl sales. The same quality that established White Owl leadership in 1921 is in the cigar—the same policy of accepting only a small margin of profit per cigar is behind it.

It is always a good plan to tie up to a leader.

RISE IN STERLING AND GRAIN BUOYS FINANCE WORLD

The New York Times.

New York, Feb. 12.—[Special.]—Two incidents in the financial and commercial markets of the last week have had distinct effect in modifying, if not reversing, the common view of certain highly important aspects of the situation. The first is the rise in the price of wheat, with simultaneous advance in all of the European exchanges except those of central Europe, is one of the most striking economic occurrences since the armistice. Likewise the rise in wheat is of outstanding importance.

It must not be forgotten that when once the temporary influence of speculation is eliminated or allowed for, there is no appeal from the verdict of the foreign exchange market. What its verdict necessarily means on this occasion that the sweeping judgment commonly entertained last autumn as to the economic condition of the solvent states of Europe was erroneous, that not only were the majority of experts in error in indulging in unwarranted flight of imagination, but that the actual economic achievements of those countries during 1921—notably England, France, and Italy—were of a highly important nature.

Events Still Fresh in Mind.

It is not necessary to recite those events again, the principal consideration of debt, the suspension of paper currencies, the export of gold on a quite unprecedented scale and the bringing of an adverse trade balance down to pre-war proportions. The essential fact is that the road of economic reconstruction has actually been followed in the direction pointed out both by common sense and by the teachings of history.

This is far from meaning that anything like the pre-war condition of things has been restored or will soon be re-established. That will happen only with the solution of the economic problems of Germany and the rest of central Europe.

Nevertheless, the present movement of the European exchanges is at least the dim foreshadowing of the time, which eventually is bound to come, when Europe will draw on the American gold reserves through the legitimate machinery of exchange and thereby prepare for the now more or less resumption of gold payments.

Effect of Rise in Wheat.

The importance of the rise in wheat lies primarily in its effect on the financial condition and purchasing power of the western farm community, without whose resumption of purchases most industries consider real revival of trade improbable.

With grain prices, as with foreign exchange rates, it remains for the markets of the next few weeks or months to show how far stability at the present higher level can be depended on. But of the wholesome change which both movements have already caused in the general situation, there could be no question.

LONDON MARKET BRIGHTENED BY A1 SECURITIES

By MANFRED EMANUEL.

Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service. [Copyright: 1922: By the Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Conditions on the London stock exchange have shown a decided improvement during the last week. At first the troubles in Ireland and the political uncertainties in France and the rest of the continent continued to dominate the troubousome conditions in India created a little uneasiness, but the monetary position was restabilished by the demand for first class securities and confidence was restored.

The gilt edged section has on the whole remained strong. The premium on the New South Wales issues has strengthened, while the new Suez issue sopr established a premium. The market closed cheerfully.

Foreign bonds moved with the exchanges on continental rates, reacting on the greatly improved value of sterling in New York.

Home sales again proved a rising market, with dividend announcements eminently satisfactory.

In the mines, Kaffirs firmed up on the attitude towards the strike adopted by the government, and Geduldus are continuing in request.

Pyramid Portland Cement.

C. E. C. D. Marion, La.—$300,000. Pyramid Portland Cement Company 8 per cent serial convertible bonds for participating bonds are secured by a mortgage on all fixed assets. It is estimated that these assets will be worth about 2½ times the issue on completion of the plant. These bonds are issued to furnish funds to complete the plant and to give working capital. As the company has not completed its plant and has not actually begun work there are no earnings on which to base an opinion as to the safety of interest payments. Until the company gets started and shows what it can do these bonds are a speculative investment. Their safety depends on the future business of the company.

Brief Answers.

K. D. S., Lexington, Ky.—The Mobile and Ohio railroad first 6s, due 1927, are dated May 1, 1919. There are $7,000,000 authorized and outstanding. They are a first lien from Mobile to Columbus, Ky., on 472 miles of road and all equipment. They are listed on the New York stock exchange. They are a sound investment.

H. R. B.—The Lake Roland Electric Railway company 6s have been assumed by the United Railways and Electric company of Baltimore. They are a first mortgage on all the property formerly belonging to the company. They are very well secured and the margin of safety is very wide. They are a conservative investment.

GRAIN ADVANCE DISPELS GLOOM AMONG TRADERS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

All the United States grain exchanges will be closed today. A most remarkable change has come over the grain trade within the last few weeks. Sentiment has switched from the bearish to the constructive side of all markets. Wheat has advanced 15¢/c from the low point of the previous week and is up 50¢ from the inside price of the season made early in November, and prices are within 9¢ of the highest of the season. Corn is up 9¢ from the season's low, and so, within a week, oats have advanced more than 2¢ in a week, and 5¢ from the season's low.

Wheat Reserves Small.

The world's wheat situation is most strikingly favorable to the constructive side of the market and the response of values to a change in belief of late is a realization of conditions confronting the trade. There is only around 28,000,000 bu margin in the world's surplus as regards supplies and requirements for carrying over into the next season. This is so small that any further downward revision in the crops in leading producing countries, particularly in Argentina and Australia, would easily change the world's wheat situation. Expectations are that prices will work irregularly higher.

Weather and crop conditions in the southwest are to be important factors in the wheat market from now on. Milling demand shows evidence of improving. Movement of wheat in the southwest has increased as farmers are taking advantage of advanced prior to market the last of their grain and liquidate their notes due banks.

May wheat closed Saturday at $1.33¢ to $1.32, a gain of 8¢; July, $1.17¢ to $1.18, up 5¢, and from now on, July is to receive increased attention. Prices for the week follow:

May, 1.25¢; July, 1.28¢.

Tuesday, 1.27¢; June 1.30¢; Wednesday, 1.29¢; July 1.31¢; Friday, 1.30¢; Saturday, 1.32¢; Sunday, 1.33¢; Monday, 1.34¢; Tuesday, 1.35¢; Wednesday, 1.36¢; Thursday, 1.37¢; Friday, 1.38¢; Saturday, 1.39¢; GRAND OLD MAN OF GREECE, Eleutherios Venizelos, and his bride photographed while on their honeymoon visit to Palm Beach. The former premier of Greece was delighted with the climate, tropic scenery, and beautiful homes at the famous Florida winter resort.

COOL? NOT AT ALL. Kyra, dancer in a local theater, skated on Lincoln park lagoon in this costume. "Skirts hamper a good skater," she said.

IN MEMORY OF LINCOLN. Actual relics of the martyred President and his family were used in the ceremony in honor of his birthday by the Chicago Historical society. The photograph shows Miss Georgene Faulkner, who told the story of "The Real Lincoln," in a dress frequently worn by Mrs. Lincoln and looking at the bed in which Lincoln slept.

ELOPERS—AND TO HOLLYWOOD! Tales of wealth and amazebiles like Pullman cars in the movie colony deeply impressed this romantic pair, Raymond Fink, 6 years old, and Mollie Fisher, 5 years old. A policeman found them in the Northwestern station, boarding a train to Hollywood. "where the rich people are," they said.

KIDDIES HOLD ICE CARNIVAL. The little children of the wealthy folk of Lake Forest had the time of their busy lives at the annual children's party and carnival at the Winter club. Attired in costumes representing many nations and characters, the youngsters played games, watched moving pictures, and wrecked a record breaking dinner. The affair was under the direction of Mrs. Uri B. Grannis, and the children were "chaperoned" by their parents. In the photograph are Mary Chapman, Eleanor Chapman, Jean Rumsey, and Margaret Lennan.

LESSON IN CHEERFULNESS. Although minus an arm and leg since childhood, Alva Allison, watchman at I. C. tracks and 75th street, is called "the smiling flagman" because he faces life smilingly.

LOOK, BUCKS, A BONUS! Ohio officials are shown signing state bonds to provide $10 a month up to twenty-five months for Ohio soldiers. A "signgraph," writing the names on ten bonds at a time, was used. Left to right are State Treasurer R. W. Archer, Assistant Secretary of State Harvey C. Smith, State Auditor J. I. Tracy, and [signing] Attorney General John G. Price.

AUTOMOBILE KIDNAPERS. Police believe scores of cases where automobileists have been kidnapped and robbed and their machines stolen, as well as a hundred robberies of delivery wagon drivers and store holdups, will be solved through the arrest of the two young men in the center of this photograph. They were snappet with their captors, Motorcycle Policeman Henry Hutterer [extreme left] and Motorcycle Policeman James Boyle [extreme right]. The two are Martin Lawrence [next to Policeman Hutterer] and George Downes. Two other young men with them escaped and are now being hunted.

SIGNAL HONOR. Miss Helen Kasbeer of Normal, Ill., University of Wisconsin student, chosen one of four U. S. college delegates to the World Student Christian federation in China in April.

CHAMPION SPEED TYPIST. Albert Tangora, national amateur champion, showed TRIBUNE reporters how to write a column of copy with a "deadline" five minutes away. He wrote 246 words a minute from memorized copy, and from unfamiliar copy dashed off 157 words a minute, at the same time answering questions and adding a column of figures totaling 4,178. He is only 18 years old.

LOVERS OF HORSES. Pierrots, Columbines, Indians, cowboys, English squires, mailed knights, men and maid of 1776, galloped their horses about Dexter park pavilion at the field day of the Chicago Equestrian society. Later the members dined and danced at the Stock Yards inn. In the photograph are Miss Edna Baker [left] and Miss Edith S. Cook.

WOMEN SCORE DEMOCRATIC SLATE. "There are candidates on the ticket not acceptable to a large number of the women of the Democratic party," read a resolution adopted at a massmeeting at the Great Northern hotel. DUBLIN, Feb. 13.—The British are planning to seize control of government in

Ireland. This was openly charged

today by Michael

Collins, head of the provisional government, in a

cable to Thomas

W. Lyons, national

secretary of the American association for the

recognition of the Irish republic.

This is the first official cognizance Michael makes of the political aspects of the south Ireland.

Steal Arms and Munitions

The south has been used from the time the Dali r treaty. Numerous attacks have been made on the departing Briti shy many of whom have been handed over their arms.

There have been scores of automobiles, horses, wagons,

from the military, and the

of the Free State believe the

of the treaty are accumula-ries of a military nature for purpose of trying to upset the ary government.

A man high in the provi-

ernment asserted he pos-

edence that these embarras-ances were mostly political ter, and all a part of the De V

scheme to overthrow the overnment.

Collins Warns Americans

Undoubtedly this was in M mind when he sent the follow

to Mr. Lyons:

"I warn you not to ascenitence the coup d'et-

planned against the new go-

as witness the affair in C

the departing British police seized by Eamon de Val-porters. The only object of action can be to destroy t

overnment and to have

Mr. Collins received the message today from M. J. A

Chicago, of the American

for the Recognition of Ireland

"At a meeting of the pres-

the sixteen councils in the district, representing

15,000 members, the expresion was unanimous for major

Ireland as in the United S

for the support only of a go which received the sanctio

Irish people."
